Now all she has to do is find it. Gloria French was a jolly widow with bottle-blond hair, a raucous laugh, and rosy cheeks. When she first moved from London to the charming Cotswold hills, she was heartily welcomed. She seemed a do-gooder par excellence, raising funds for the church and caring for the elderly. But she had a nasty habit of borrowing things and not giving them back-a teapot here, a set of silverware there. So it s quite the shock when she is found dead, murdered by a poisoned bottle of elderberry wine. Afraid the murder will be a blight on the small town, the Parish councilor hires private detective Agatha Raisin to lead the murder investigation. But the village is secretive. and no one s talking. Of course that doesn t stop the ever-persistent Agatha from sticking her nose where no one wants it-especially as the suspect list grows. And if it isn t enough that Agatha s own ex has reentered the picture, the killer is now targeting Agatha! With Something Borrowed, Someone Dead, M. C. Beaton delivers more of the Agatha Raisin readers can t get enough of. M. C. Beaton has a foolproof plot for the village mystery. -The New York Times Book Review In [this] lively mystery.
