Wildside Press. Paperback. Condition: New. 218 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.8in.Jack was on fire to be off to Brindisi and see what was wrong. He made short work of his packing, and within an hour he was driving to Longhampton to catch the London express. He caught it with scarcely two minutes to spare, and was soon whirling towards the great city. A short distance from Longhampton, he caught a glimpse of Rushmere School in the distance on its hill, and the strip of heath country running up to the foot of the slope. This brought to mind his adventure, which remained as mysterious an affair as ever. The police had been most active, stations had been watched, inquiries had been made in every direction, but all to no result. The Thugs had vanished and left no trace behind. But the thought of his encounter on the heath soon faded from Jacks mind. It was crushed out by the pressing question of the moment. What was the matter at Brindisi Why had Risley cabled and not his father Had something happened to his father Jack felt wretchedly uneasy, for he and his father were bound together by no ordinary ties of affection. In the first place, he had, as far as he knew, no other living relation. His mother had been dead for many years, and his father was the only close friend that Jack knew. Then the elder Haydon had always been a great hero in his sons eyes. His profession of mining engineer had carried him into many wild corners of the world, and the store of marvellous tales which he would pour forth for the boys delight had made Jacks holidays a time of intense pleasure. Mr. Haydon had always made a point, if it...
