Excerpt: . . . and stole it, wherewith he acquainted the plaintiff. And it was objected that the Rejoinder was a departure; for the Rejoinder did not show an accounting, but an excuse for not accounting. But the Court held that showing he was robbed of a sum of money, was giving an account of it, and that therefore there was no departure. Vere v. Smith, 2 Lev. 5; Vent. 121. Yet a plaintiff might always new assign in his Reply; in other words, though he might not set up a new claim, he might explain and define his original claim, a thing which it was often necessary to do in the days when declarations were worded in very general terms. Thus, in an action for repeated trespasses to a close of land, if the defendant pleaded that he had a right of way across that close, the...
